A COMPROMISE.

"Ye-es. Oh, yes!" I had agreed with her, you see. "You're laughing at me. I did agree to what you wanted when you had a distinct preference, Jack. At least I meant to, And I suggested that nice little smoking room. And-

"Of course you did, dear." I haven't many "distinct preferences" in such things, I may observe,

"I will let you alter anything you want to. I shouldn't like to be selfish about our-home." I knew she wouldn't, "I wouldn't alter any of your arrangements on my account, Cis."

"Our arrangements," she corrected. www did agree about everything, really, didn't we?"

"Except the breakfast room mantelpiece." I couldn't help teasing her a little.

well, we agreed about that, really, didn't we, Jack? Except-"Well?" I was obliged to laugh, and so was she. "Except that you wanted it black, and

"Which are the same thing—really and truly."
"N-o, perhaps not quite. Oh, don't Jack!" I had given her tiny ear a pull.
"You shouldn't call black white,

"I said I didn't mind black if you

"I said I didn't mind black if you wished it very much."
"And I said I didn't mind white if you wished it even a little."
"But I wish to wish as you wish me to wish." She looked plaintively at me, and I could see that she was contemplating a great sacrifice.
"But don't you wish black?"
"Well-mot exactly."
"White-if you liked white. But you don't." She looked at the vacant place for the mantel and sighed.
"But I don't mind."
"Oh, but you said you preferred black."

"So I do." "Then you are very-you know what I mean?" SILLY?"

"Oh, yes! That, of course. Be quiet Jack."
"Well? Silly-and what else?"

She considered tremendously, and then pronounced with bated breath, "Illogical!"

"Illogical!"
"I hope so!" The only philosopher worth reading (of course I mean James) says it's the glory of man to do what he doesn't like just because he "But you really prefer black?"

"Yes. But I am quite willing-"I won't let you."

"You can't prevent me."
"Oh, but I can! I shall insist on black. Though I am sure if you saw "We can't have both."

"We can't have both."
"Of course not. But we could—what do you call it?"
"Have none?"
"Oh, Jack! Do be sensible. It is really an important question."
"The color of the mantelpiece?"
"No, no! You and me!" She took hold of my arm in one of her prettiest ways. She has a lot of them.
"Is it as serious as that, little wo-man?"

"Not the mantelplece, but-but-our

We agree pretty well, don't we,

Why, we've only quarrelled once in twelve months, and then it was Aunt Sarah Jane's fault, not ours. "Not if you want one thing and I another."

'Not often, I hope, Jack dear?" Her big eyes were almost tearful.

"Not about anything serious, Cis."
"Oh, no. If it were serious I should have to give way. Unless—"

"Ah!"
"Don't tease, Jack, there's a good boy, It is very important, really."
"Well, unless—??"
"Well, unless—tould persuade you." It's

"Well, unless—??"

"Unless I could persuade you." It's a big exception.

"As you generally will, you little scamp." She laughed and nodded.

"Of course in little things you'll humer me, won't you?"

"Of course I shall. In this case I'm quite ready to do so. In fact, I don't really care."

"I know, dear. If you did I'd say 'black' in a moment." She would, too. "But suppose we really can't agree about something, Jack? Whatever shall we do?" This was a poser.
"We shall have to satisfy shall we do?" This was a poser.

"We shall have to settle it somehow,"
"But how? What do men do when they can't agree about anything?"
"Toss up." I said cheerfully, "Let's toss up about the mantelpiece." I produced a penny, but she shook her head.
"Well, what then?"
She looked down the garden as if she were counting the trees. Then she suddenly brightened up. "We might have a compromise."

suddenly brightened up. "We might have a compromise."
"Exactly. The very thing!"
"Then we shall agree."
"Of course we shall,"
"Tim glad you thought of it." She beamed like anything.
"And what color shall the compromise he?"

"Why-of course-white!"

Reciprocity Canada's Cry.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 1 .- Commercial Agent Hamilton, at Morrisburgh, Ontario, in a report to the state department, says that merchants of the United States are making a great mistake in not sending their agents into Canada. The change in the tariff law of the United States, has for the presof the United States, has for the present hecessarily stopped trade, but this will be only temporarily. The agent says one of the largest lumber dealers told him that the $2 rate on lumber had checked business, but he believes that it would revive. Mr. Hamilton adda that reciprocity is the cry of the Canadian."

The provessionals bought stocks in the morning and sold them in the afternoon, with the result that nearly all changes resolved themselves into very small fractions, though the later reaction extended a little further than the early rise. The sale of the Union Pacific main line at Omaha had the effect of stiffening the price of the stock which rose at one time 1% per cent above the low point and saved a part of its advantage at the close. The stock was, however, without buoyancy. Consolidated Gas also fluctuated in a characteristically erratic manner, dropping two points, rising 4% and closing the day with a net gain of two. Pittsburgh, Cincipnati, Chicago & St. Louis showed a continuance of its recent form and is higher on the day. They rangers showed some strength during the day, but the gains were wiped out except in the case gains were wiped out except in the case of Burlington & Northern Pacific pre-

There was some buying of Louisville on the showing by its September statement of an increase in net earnings of $114,258. For the rest brokers and operators seemed to be more interested in discussing to-morrow's municipal election and betting on the result than in dealing in stocks. To-day being a bank holiday in London, no quotations were received from there to influence results here, but there was light buying results here, but there was light buying of some stocks in this market for London account. The stiffening in the rate for call money is not regarded as likely to last for any length of time and is attributed to operations incident to the November disbursements on account of dividends and interest, which are estimated at about $30,000,000.

CHICAGO—Wheat had to encounter

CHICAGO—Wheat had to encounter a great number of discouragements to begin with to-day and they were added to by one other extremely bearish feature that developed during the day. The breaking of the drought throughout Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Tennessee and Kentucky, very heavy receipts of wheat in the northwest, lower quotations from Liverpool, world's shipments for the week heavier than expected, and a further increase in the amount on ocean passage. That was too formidable an array of opposing forces for the bulls to stand up against and consequently the opening of the day's proceedings was at a net decline of about to per bushel. December ranged from 95%c to 57c at the opening with a few sales immediately after at 95%c. Offerings were not so heavy as expected, de per busines. December range atom pessage in mediately after at .95%c. Offerings were not so heavy as expected, and for this reason a slow recovery to .97c ensued, which was the highest point of the day. After that prices sagged, the weakness becoming very decided when the figures on the visible were announced, showing an increase of 2,345,060 bushels. This was a complete surprise and showed how little can be learned of the changes in stocks in regular elevators of the country by taking the published daily receipts at the principal markets.

Liverpool showed a %d decline at the opening here, but recovered this later. Chicago receipts were 181 cars, 43 of them No. 1 northern spring. Minneapolis reported 1,360 carloads and Duluth 195, of 1,856 at the two places, compared with 1,840 on the preceding week and 1,447 the corresponding week of the year before. Healdes the rail receipts as mentioned for Chicago, 17,900 bushels, were received by canal, but the latter was understood to be from a clearing house on the canal in the neighborhood of Chicago. The quantity on ocean passage showed an increase of 1,22,000 bushels. The total primary market receipts to day were 1,851,900 bushels, against 1,295,000 a year ago.

The statistical news for the day was buillab in only one particular, and that was the quantity of wheat and flour particular, and that was the quantity of wheat and flour particular.

The statistical news for the day was bullish in only one particular, and that was the quantity of wheat and flour cleared for export from Atlantic ports since Saturday, which was equal to 638,690 bushels. By about 12 o'cleck December had declined to 95c and May, which had started at 914,69014c, was setting at 39%c. During the afternoon the market showed some signs of strength. A break of over the was tempting enough to many shorts, who improved the opportunity to take profits. The buying caused a raily in December to 2614c, where it closed. May in the meantime recovered to and closed at 2614.

Corn was barely steady, closing at a slight recession from Saturday's price. It was due entirely to sympathy with wheat, rather strong statistical news preventing more than a ¼ decline. Oats were quiet with an easy feeling apparent and prices off a trifle in sympathy with corn. Only a limited business was transacted and nothing in the way of features developed. The visible decreased 504,000 bushels. Local stocks fell off 651,000 bushels last week, which steadied the market somewhat. Resteadied the market somewhat. Re-celpts were 315 cars. Provisions, though quiet, were firm all day. Hog receipts were lighter than expected and freezing weather was reported from the yellow fever districts. Expectations of a heavy decrease in stocks for the month also caused some buying. Cash demand was large. The opening was irregular, but prices soon firmed up and a slow but steady advance ensued. At the close December pork was 12½c higher at 37 65, December lard 7½ higher at 32½ and December ribs 10c higher at 34 55.
